STELLA HARRIS OAKS HORIZONS OF HOPE SINGLE-PARENT SCHOLARSHIP LDS BUSINESS COLLEGE

---

The Need

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, 28 percent of children now live with just one parent, a huge rise from 1970 when 12 percent were raised by single parents. In 1970, the number of single-parent families with children under the age of 18 was 3.8 million. By 1990, the number had more than doubled to 9.7 million. One in four children are born to an unmarried mother. Another 40 percent of children under 18 will experience parental breakup.

Ninety percent of single-parent families are headed by females. Not surprisingly, single mothers with dependent children have the highest poverty rate. Approximately 60 percent of U.S. children living in mother-only families are impoverished, compared with only 11 percent of two-parent families. Mother-only families are more likely to be poor because of the lower earning capacity of women. The median annual income for female-headed households with children under six years old is roughly one-fourth that of two-parent families.

The Hope

LDS Business College has developed an approach to help single parents, especially women, improve their earning potential. Single parents enrolled at the College use scholarship funds to pay tuition, books, and other expenses. The students enroll in one of six career-oriented programs: accounting, business, computers, medical careers, interior design, or office technology. For the past 10 years, the College has successfully placed 90 percent of its graduates.

In their first semester, students study math, learning techniques, career exploration, interpersonal communication, writing, computers, and religion. In addition, faculty and staff members serve as mentors for the students. At present, Adrian Juchau, Director of Student Support, serves as the principle mentor.

Before enrolling, all students must meet with their LDS bishop and agree to live by the College's Honor Code and Dress and Grooming Code. This interface with the bishop and commitment to live by the Honor Code gives single parents a spiritual framework that greatly improves their chances for success.

The Horizon

To date, most single parents who have earned a degree or certificate at the College have improved their earning ability and their future income potential. More importantly, they have graduated with hope, confidence, and determination.

We have seen the positive effects in the lives of single parents of a two-year, career-based education provided in a spiritual setting. We are committed to doing all within our means to provide them every possible opportunity for success.
