

*To answer this question, think about how your condition has impacted you. The first questions you should ask yourself are "How does my disability affect me?" and "How does my disability make me struggle in my studies?" Some additional questions that can guide you:

When thinking about your past:

- How do I learn best?
- What are my challenges?
- What accommodations have I used in the past?
- What adaptive devices or assistive technology has been helpful to my success?
- What have I tried that hasn't worked?

How does your disability impact:

- Listening?
- Reading?
- Keyboarding/typing?
- Sleep?
- Social interactions?
- Mathematical calculations?
- Ability to meet deadlines?

3. Modifications Request

What modifications are you requesting?*

Given your functional limitations, what modifications will help you to be successful? Look at what you wrote for your functional limitations and think about what modifications would be helpful for you need to accommodate your disability. Consider things that would be helpful in-class, for outside homework/assignments, and for tests/exams.
